The Lectionary for Mass— Fifth Sunday in Ordinary Time

First Reading: Isaiah's prophetic call is dramatic theatre! Angels acclaim the Lord's glory so intensely that the door to Isaiah's house shakes, and smoke enters. He thinks death will come to him because he is not without sin. But the opposite is the case. One of the seraphim approaches Isaiah with an ember from the altar, a sign of the Lord's offer of forgiveness. "Whom shall I send?" is the Lord's question to Isaiah and the Lord's question to us on this Fifth Sunday in Ordinary Time. Will we present ourselves for mission once again?

Responsorial Psalm 138: In the words of Psalm 138, a hymn of thanksgiving, we sing our praise and thanks to the Lord for all he has done for us. The Lord answers our call. The Lord's fidelity to his promises is beyond compare. The reference to angels in the refrain from verse 1c provides a direct connection the seraphim in the First Reading. May our song of gratitude arise from our assemblies this day in the presence of the angels.

Second Reading: Paul's testimony begins with a statement of the kerygma that he received. All that Paul has handed on to the Corinthians was the faith others gave to him: Christ died, was buried, rose from the dead, and appeared to many after his Resurrection. In humility, Paul notes that the Risen Christ appeared to him last of all for he had persecuted Christians. Grace made Paul the preacher of the Gospel to the Corinthians. Grace will do the same for the Corinthians—and for us as we proclaim and live the Gospel. There are longer and shorter forms of the reading.

Gospel: Simon struggles to trust that any catch will come to the fishermen should they follow Jesus' command to lower their nets. They had worked hard all day, but caught nothing. Much to their surprise an abundant supply of fish filled their nets to the point of tearing and the boat of sinking. Simon's humble reply mirrors Isaiah's as he confesses his sinfulness. Instead of leaving him as Simon requested, Jesus turns the tables and invites Simon to fish for followers with him. Jesus will never depart from us, but will only draw closer.
